The Rental Opportunity

The trend to rent is increasing as companies are faced with fluctuating demand and seek out ways to reduce capital equipment costs. Some estimates show the industrial equipment rental market to be a $33 billion industry supported by more than 26,000 businesses that rent equipment in the United States.

The potential market expands when you include other rental industries served by the solution such as motion picture and theatrical equipment, party and event supplies, and other capitalized items. Rental360 is flexible enough to serve rental only companies as well as companies that have rental operations as an auxiliary part of their business – such as dealerships, manufacturers and companies that rent, sell and service their products.

How Rental Companies Benefit

With Rental360's all-in-one system, rental companies will no longer have to be burdened with maintaining separate rental and accounting systems, and can stop using separate spreadsheets for equipment tracking. With this all-in-one system, business owners get clear insight into business metrics and can use this information to increase profits.

Rental360 accommodates the wide variety of rental requirements and scenarios with advanced functionality and flexible design. Rental360 provides flexible billing, delivery and pickup ticket processing, equipment management, dual inventory processing, rental analysis and much more.

- Increase the efficiency of equipment rentals for maximum return on investment.
- Streamline the check-out/ check-in, exchange and delivery operations for better customer service and equipment utilization.
- Incorporate rental transactions into company operations – not stand-alone software or an isolated point solution.
- Avoid revenue and billing leakage with advanced billing options and controls.
- Track, manage and monitor equipment availability across multiple locations.
- Get insight into finances with cost reporting tools for equipment and operation.
- Create quotes based on the most current information.

Confidence You Can Count On

Because Rental360 is developed by an established Acumatica partner, your clients get a strong and reputable solution that offers support and customer service from experienced staff.
